the sum of $8,057.52, collected on account of the Todd tax tickets, was on November 1, 1906, in the possession of respondent. He was then short $883.16, the balance of the original shortage, and the court is of opinion, after giving respondent the benefit of the most favorable view that on be taken in his behalf, that the said amount of $883.16, balance of said original shortage, was clearly county funds, and the residue of said shortage, which was made good on the 16th day of October—viz. $3,293.70—came from money collected by said transurer in his official capacity, in which the county had an interest. This view is further confirmed by the conduct of respondent, who, when asked by Boudar and Company, the examiners of the office: "What was your reason, Mr. Hechler, for using this mency in the way you did?" said: "I did it to save the discounts that the bank would have charged me." He went on further and stated that he had a line of credit at the State Bank of $3,000, which he could at any time call on to make any account good that was necessary, and that he did not use this money with any intention of wrongdoing, but simply to save interest or discount on these notes. E., page $1. And also, when called before the beard of supervisors of the county to explain this shortage, his only defense was that he had used the money for his private purposes to avoid pasting discount, and did not think it was wrong, as he had a credit of $3,000 in the State Bank of Virginia, and could have replaced the money of any time. (R. page 64.) This action on the part of respondent is a clear violation of the express provisions of our statut, as set forth in sections $64, $65, $717. V. C. 1857, and was malfessance in office, and clear violation of the express provis-ions of our statute, as set forth in sections 864, 865, 3717, V. C., 1887, and was malfeasance in office, and the court is required by law to per-form the painful duty of removing said respondent from office.

I have been urged by the able and learned counsel for respondent to solve every doubt in his favor. I have done this, and would that I could see my way clear to doubt.

Order of Removal.

Respondent has acted in the manner he has with his eyes open. When he was appointed treasurer by this court it was not then known that Todd was short in his accounts. Some doubt has been expressed about the courthouse whether, under the terms of this statute, an appeal is contemplated in the case of removal for malfensance. The lawyers in the case had not made careful examination of the matter last night, and detion of the matter last night, and de-clined to be quoted.

Scott's decision.

Mr. Heebler was appointed by Judge Scott on March 10, 1996, to fill the unexpired term of Mr. W. J. Todd, decased, and the natural term of the office expires on January 1, 1998. A number of candidates are already in the field for the summer election, among those whose names have been menthe field for the summer election, among those whose names have been mentioned being Mr. John E. Broaddus, Mr. George Watt and Mr. William B. Frayser. Mr. Hechler, it was said yesterday, will stand for re-election. This information was received after Mr. Hechler left the courthouse, and he could not be reached last night.

Judge Scott would by no means be limited to this list, however, and may appoint any citizen of the county to fill the unexpired term.

TWO ARRESTS IN TOWNSEND CASE

Bell and Flood Had Concealed Two Pistols in a Closet.

Will Run for It.

There was considerable interest about the courthouse as to the probable appointment of another treasurer in case the Supreme Court declines to review the case, or sustains Judge Scott's decision.

Mr. Hechler was appointed by Judge Scott on March 10, 1996, to fill the unexpired term of Mr. W. J. Todd, decased, and the natural term of the cased, and the natural term of the lield without bail in the case, and Flood is a friend of Samuel Bell.

The arrests to-day were due, the police say, to their having found two revolvers at the Bell home in Brooklyn. On their first visit, they say, the pistols were not discovered, but that on a second search they found them concealed in a closet. Coroner Cahili said to-day that Samuel Bell dmitted that he had removed the we olvers from a bureau hurdered, and took them to Flooris home, later carrying them back to his own home. Both men, the ceroner said, denied having cleaned or put fresh cartridges in the revolvers, which the police declare were fully loaded and bore evidences of a recent cleaning when they found them.

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 2.—
The report has been received at the War Department of the special board of army officers who were detailed to select land in the neighborhood of Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., for use as a brigade post and a manoeuvre ground. The tract will cost nearly a million dollars. The board has obtained options on certain land, which expire in March and July, The report states:

"The board is of the opinion that the portion of the tract adjoining Fort Oglethorpe is well suited for expansion into a brigade post, with necessary ground

for drills, ceremonies and clementary instruction in extended order.

"It is considered that this tract is sufficiently large for a mixed garrison, not to exceed three regiments. The board deems that this other tract should be utilized for working out of problems involving combined operations of all arms and any number of troops concentrated for maceuvre purposes. The land its so situated that in operating over it, it will be necessary for the troops to remain out overnight. This is considered an advantage, as it necessitates a closer approximation to service conditions. This land is well suited for the use intended. It admits of all forms of tactical operations."

A few additional subscriptions came in yesterday, some by mail and some that had not hitherto been reported, and the total figures last night were $227,590.43 for the campaign.

Secretary McKee urges all committee chairmen and others having cards and papers belonging to the campaign, whether they have any apparent value or not, to turn them in at once, in order that all the records may be kept in the most businesslike manner. It is proposed that all the papers and records used in connection with the campaign be made into a package and put in the corner-stone of the new building.

Building were closed permanently last night, and the firms that have loaned furniture, typewriters, etc., will remove their property on Monday, and the room will be turned over to the government officials. A corner of the lobby of the building at Sixth and Main Streets will be fenced off for a desk for Assistant Secretary Thompson, who will have charge of the new building papers and pledge cards. There are nearly 4,500 separate pledges, and most of these are in four payments, covering a period of from six months to two years. The work of collecting these pledges and keeping an accurate record will be considerable.

With regard to the cabled gift of Miss Helen Gould of $25,000, which gave such a dramatic finish to the campaign, Mr. William Northrop said yesterday he inderstood that Miss Gould had made a straight donation, without any limiting proviso of any kind.

It has been suggested that this $25,000 be used to build a special boys' annex to the proposed building to bear Miss Gould's name, and to give the boys' department a distinct home, where they would not be liable to be crowded out by an increased membership of men in future years.
